

BEAUTIFUL MUSIC: The music just keeps coming at Johnos too. Triple J faves The Beautiful Girls hit the stage at Johnos on October 15th & 16th, sandwiched between their performances at the Melbourne and Brisbane Livid festivals, and from October 22nd - 25th an eclectic bluesman from north Florida who answers to the name of Molten Mike will be in action at the Aplin Street club. The Beautiful Girls are, of course, three fellas, who, like The Waifs, draw on roots music for their inspiration. 'Black Bird', the first single off their debut album, Learn Yourself, is currently enjoying rotation on radio stations across the country. The band has spent most of 2003 playing major festivals including the East Coast Blues Fest, The Falls Festival, Woodford Folk Festival and the St Kilda Festival.

This Friday at Johnos catch the live Australian debut of Italy's answer to Bon Jovi, Holy Wood, who are 'down under' to record a new album. The gig starts at midnight, so leave your pumpkins at home!
